

Fountain Hills HS Service Project Activity - Crisis Nursery of Phoenix

Friday, January 25th, 18 FEA (Future Educator's of Arizona) students had an activity related to their service project.

They went to Crisis Nursery of Phoenix and delivered over $600 worth of donations and supplies that they purchased from money they raised.

Crisis Nursery is a non-profit organization that helps abused and neglected children and their families.

The students then went with a group of 3-5 year old children from the shelter to Scottsdale McCormick Railroad Park and had a nice day together.

FEA students packed brown bag lunches for everyone and played with their new buddies on the playground.

The little children seemed to enjoy the attention from the high school students, for whom the whole experience was very rewarding and eye-opening.

FEA treated the children to train and carrousel rides, and former FHHS student John Rambo, whose mother works at the park, was able to arrange free ice cream for the children.

FEA hopes to do more with Crisis Nursery.
